January/February 2020

Well its 2020!!! hope that everyone had a Great Christmas and a Happy New year. As we move into 2020, we have several things to get started planning. 1st and foremost is the 2020 Berger Chevrolet ALL GM Show. We also need to start working on our calendar for 2020. LEAKED: New Special Edition 2020 Chevrolet Camaro

A new special edition Camaro is also joining the 2020 model year lineup. It hasn't been officially announced yet, but an online configurator on Chevrolet's Canadian website spotted by Muscle Cars and Trucks has revealed the details early. Available for 2LT, 3LT, and 2SS trims, the 2020 Chevrolet Camaro Shock And Steel Special Edition features several exterior enhancements to distinguish it from the regular model. The most noticeable differences are new Shock and Satin Steel Metallic colors, which have contrasting racing stripes. Selecting the Shock exterior applies a Satin Steel racing stripe, while the Satin Steel version features a Shock-colored racing stripe. Both models also include 20-inch blade design aluminum wheels and mirrors painted in Carbon Flash, as well as a black fuel filler door with a carbon fiber insert and Brembo 4-piston front calipers painted in yellow. Inside, the package adds black sueded knee pads, a carbon fiber instrument panel frame, and a premium carpeted floor. Unfortunately, the photos taken from the configurator don't show the new racing stripes included in the package, but we can still see the new striking paint finishes. Pricing details also haven't been confirmed, but the 2020 Chevrolet Camaro starts at $25,000. Hopefully it won't be long until the new special edition package becomes available on Chevrolet's US configurator.
